
Inbound Sales Script

Final expense — META inbounds. Control the frame from hello. Ask, don't tell. Every question moves them one step closer to the application, and the application is where the sale happens.

Contents

Intro, Health & the Product	2
Beneficiary, Emotion & Budget	3
Carrier Positioning & the Six Benefits	4
The Quote, Golden Question & Application	5
In-App Objection Handling	6
Banking & Bank Objections	7
After the Close	8

Intro & Health Qualification

Set the frame, confirm the basics, and earn the right to ask health questions.

01 Opening

Hello, this is (your name) — I'm a licensed insurance broker with Thrive Companies... Who do I have the pleasure of speaking with today?

Pause for response.

Hi (first name). For quality assurance purposes, this call may be recorded. Before we get started, can you confirm the state you're calling from? And then quick question before I pull things up — what is your current age?

02 Health Questions

To see which affordable final expense plans you may qualify for, I just need to go through a few brief health questions. This will help me put together options that best fit your situation. Am I ok to proceed?

1. In the past 12 months, have you used oxygen or a nebulizer, or has a doctor recommended that you use one to help you breathe?
2. Within the last year, have you been diagnosed with or treated for any major medical conditions such as cancer, stroke, heart attack, heart disease, kidney or liver failure, or COPD?
3. Have you ever been diagnosed with AIDS, HIV, dementia, or had an amputation caused by disease?
4. Are you currently in a nursing facility, receiving hospice care, or being advised by a medical professional to receive home health care?

Listen carefully and take notes — these four answers decide the carrier you land on later. Don't rush them, and don't react to the answers.

Explaining the Product

Credentials first, then the product. Trust before information.

03 Credentials

Thank you for sharing that with me. Let me take a moment to explain how this works. If you could do me a favor and grab a pen and a piece of paper — I'll have you write down all of my credentials so you know exactly who you're speaking to. Let me know when you're ready.

Have them write down: first name, last name, state license number, and phone number. Slow down here — this is what separates you from a telemarketer in their mind.

04 What These Plans Are

My goal is to match you with an affordable, state-approved final expense life insurance plan. These are specifically designed for individuals over the age of 50 who are often on a fixed income — such as Social Security, disability, or retirement. Are you on any of those I listed?

Alternate phrasing: These plans are approved at both the state and federal level and are designed for people on tighter budgets who want to make sure their final expenses are handled.

So if you qualify — and based on what you've shared, it sounds like you do — the policy pays out directly to your beneficiary, usually within a few days of a claim. That means it's often the first money your family receives.

Discovery & Emotional Connection

Establish who it's for, then what it costs. This is where the why gets built.

05 Beneficiary Conversation

This is the most important part of the call. The beneficiary's name is the leverage you'll use in every objection from here forward — get it, write it down, and use it out loud.

So (client name), have you thought about who you would want to handle your arrangements, or receive these policy funds when that time comes?

If hesitant or unsure: I completely understand. Many people don't have someone picked out right away. You can name anyone you trust — a family member, a close friend, or even a neighbor — and you can always change it later. Is there someone that comes to mind?

Now, if something were to happen tomorrow, do you feel (beneficiary) would have enough money to take care of all of the final expenses?

And with that in mind — have you thought about whether you'd prefer cremation or a traditional burial?

Full legal name isn't required yet. Let them talk. Don't fill the silence.

06 The Real Cost

Have you ever had to plan a funeral for a loved one?

Respond empathetically. If they have, ask what that was like for the family. Their own story will do more selling than anything you say.

Most people don't realize that a cremation can cost anywhere from $5,000 to $15,000 depending on services, and a traditional burial can easily exceed $15,000 or more.

Losing someone is already incredibly emotional. When families aren't prepared, the financial stress just makes it harder. And it sounds like the reason we're speaking today is because you want to make sure your family doesn't have to carry that burden. Is that right?

Get the yes out loud. That yes is what you anchor back to on every single closing objection.

07 Budget Qualification

To help narrow this down — did you have a monthly budget in mind for what you'd feel comfortable setting aside for this final expense plan?

If unsure or mentions affordability: That could be as simple as a dollar or two a day, or a monthly amount like $40 or $60.

Write the number down. You'll quote a good/better/best around it — never below it, never wildly above it.

Carrier Positioning

You're the broker, not the salesman. Name-drop, narrow down, move to the inventory.

08 The Broker Advantage

Perfect, I'll keep that in mind. So as a broker here in (state), I work with over 108 different A-rated companies. Have you heard of Mutual of Omaha, Gerber Life, or Aflac? Great — that's a few. But I'll narrow all of those down to typically a good, a better, and a best choice, so you can decide what option feels most comfortable while still protecting your family.

To do that, I'm going to cover a few questions here to make sure I can narrow it down and help you to the best of my ability. Starting here with the best mailing address — what will that be for you?

09 Financial Inventory

Once done: Okay, perfect. From here I see that (company name) seems like the best option — we're going to see what they're offering you. So I'll have you just grab that pen and paper for me again. I'm going to give you some information about the benefits that come with this type of plan.

The Six Benefits

Have them write every one of these down. Say the header first, then explain it.

1 Immediate Coverage

As soon as you make your first premium, you're covered day one — no two-year wait period like most carriers.

2 Secured Premiums

Premiums never increase and coverage never decreases — the premium stays fixed.

3 Tax-Free

The death benefit, living benefit, and cash value are one of the few things we don't have to pay Uncle Sam for.

4 Living Benefits

If you get a terminal illness and the doctor tells you that you have 12 to 24 months to live, you'll have access to 50% of the benefit — tax free — while you're still living.

5 Cash Value

Your policy will accumulate cash value over time.

6 Permanent Coverage

This coverage will never expire on you. It lasts the rest of your life, or until the policy is paid up.

Based on what you've told me, the system has built three packages of coverage, and you can decide which one makes the most sense — but keep in mind we can adjust as you please. The goal is to find the right amount of coverage for the best premium... but at the end of the day, we still have to get it approved. Does that make sense?

The Quote

Three options, in order, with the beneficiary's name in every one.

GOOD The $__k option

This will cover a basic funeral expense, as long as it's not on the fancy end, but it won't leave money behind for (beneficiary). That will be (coverage amount) for $__ a month.

BETTER The $__k option

This is the option most people lean towards. It'll cover the full cost and factor in inflation down the road, so (beneficiary) doesn't have to be burdened by any of the expenses whatsoever. That will be (coverage amount) for $__ a month.

BEST The $__k option

This is going to guarantee to cover the full cost of the funeral and leave some money behind for (beneficiary). That will be (coverage amount) for $__ a month.

THE GOLDEN QUESTION

Given those three, which one would make the most sense for you?

Then stop talking. Whoever speaks first after this question loses.

Beginning the Application

Assume the sale. Keep it moving and keep it human.

10 The Transition

So what we'll do now is send in a request for coverage to hopefully get that approval. Keep in mind, they don't approve everyone — but I will do my best to get you this coverage, since I know how important it is to you.

Build rapport. Keep the flow of the application moving without pausing too much or too long. Make a few jokes and have fun — dead air is where objections are born.

11 Application Checklist

1. Answer all medical questions as given.
2. List the beneficiary — and ask for referrals while you're there.
3. Get the beneficiary's phone number.

Then text a picture of the application: Perfect... now what they're going to do is just validate your identity and make sure you're not a robot or anything. Obviously you're not — we're on the phone right now!

In-App Objection Handling

Their why is already on the table — anchor every response back to it.

A "I need to think about it."

I completely understand. Did you want to think about whether you needed the coverage at all, or about which option you should go with?

If which one: Let's start with the bare minimum, make sure you can get the approval and your foot in the door, and that it's comfortable and affordable. Then we can always increase it in the future. Does that make sense? So to get started on the app...
(proceed with script)

If at all: Well (first name), if you did this two weeks ago, got the coverage then, and had the peace of mind that when you go, your family had this immediate (coverage amount) — would you feel you'd be in a better position today?

If yes: Well then let's make sure you get that peace of mind — for you and for your family. (continue with script)

B "The price is too high."

Okay, I understand. Well — do you want a cheaper price, or a cheaper cost? The price is what you pay today. The cost is what you pay in the long run if you get a cheap policy from a cheap company that may never pay out, or has little to no benefits on it.

So let's make sure you get the right option. We can start with the (lowest option) and always increase it from there, so that you at least have some coverage protecting you and your family. (continue script)

C "I need to talk to my wife about this."

Push back 1: I completely understand. She's the beneficiary of the plan, and she has to know what's going on — you can't keep this a secret, that's for sure. Do you need to talk to her about which one to go with, or about whether you should even do this? Because you said this was to protect her, correct?

Push back 2: (client name), do you mind if I make a recommendation? Now, we can both agree accidents can happen at any time, right? So if something happened to you driving home tomorrow — and you had put this protection in place for your wife on possibly her worst day — do you think she'd be mad at you? Of course not. So let's make sure we can even get you approved here.

D "I don't want to give my social."

I completely understand. Now, the main reason they ask for that piece of information is because it's the only way they can identify you for the Medical Information Bureau — and when you pass away, that's the only thing on your death certificate, so it's how your loved ones get paid out. So go ahead with that number for me.

Deliver this with total confidence. If you waver, they'll sense it. Treat the objection like it's the most ordinary question in the world — because to you, it is.

Lining Up Banking

Never leave without a payment method. There is always another door.

12 Draft Date

If drafting immediately: The first premium typically drafts in 24 to 48 hours. Is that going to be fine? And is the (day) of every month going to work for you moving forward — or would you want it, like most people, on your SSI billing date?

If they push the date back: No problem — it actually looks like you qualify for Social Security billing, so it can be drafted in accordance with that date. Whether it's the 1st, the 3rd of the month, or the 3rd or 4th Wednesday — which one is when you receive your SSI?

Always push for recurring on the SSI billing date. It's the single biggest driver of persistency.

13 Banking Questions

1. Is your name as it appears with your financial institution?
2. It looks like we're partnered with (bank name) in our state system. Nine times out of ten the routing number that automates is correct — do you have a checkbook to confirm it? It should start with xxxx...
3. And your account number? — confirm it twice.

Look up the carrier's routing number for their bank and state ahead of time so you can read it to them first.

E "I don't give banking over the phone."

Push back 1: Okay, I understand — I don't like giving banking over the phone either, unless it's to a licensed and verified person and not some hobo off the street, right? That's exactly why I shared my license, my full name, and my address with you for your safety.

Push back 2: Okay (client name), well of course this is life insurance we're applying for and putting in place for your family — they do need a valid account linked so that this policy stays in place and doesn't lapse. So go ahead with your account number.

F "I don't have a checkbook."

Do you get your statements by mail or by email — or do you do online banking? Okay, go ahead and pull it up from there.

If still nothing: No worries — we can just add the card on file for now and update it later. Go ahead with the card you want to put on file.

Ask Visa or Mastercard, write down the card number, expiration month/year, and the 3-digit CVV. Make them repeat it twice. Then pivot to AIG SIWL first, Prosperity if needed.

After the Close

Recap, personalize, and protect the policy from the next guy who calls.

14 The Recap

So (client name), everything is fully submitted and approved at this point. A couple of things to recap: the coverage we applied for was $____, and that's $____ on a monthly basis.

Have them save your contact and write down the policy number.

Also — this number we're talking on is my direct line. It's the same number my mom calls me on. Anything you ever need in regards to this coverage, I'm always the first person you can reach out to. I'm just a phone call or a text away, okay?

15 Chargeback Prevention

Lastly — and this is important — we always contact the Department of Insurance in your state and let them know we've completed the request and submitted an application. The reason we do that is because it should remove you from any lists of solicitations about this coverage.

No one should ever contact you about this coverage other than myself or the carrier asking for personal information, okay? With the internet these days you'll still probably get some calls — but make sure that if anyone other than me calls, you hang up immediately.

So if they say they're the manager, or it's been flagged, or you qualify for a cheaper rate — it's just a line of crap from some telemarketer trying to pull a fast one on you. We know this coverage is important to you, and I don't want to see some random person mess up the coverage for your family. Alright? Great.

CLOSING LINE

Perfect. Now look out for that policy in the mail — typically it takes 10 to 12 business days. I'll also be sending you another text message with my name and business card so you can save my number.

Are there any questions or concerns I may have left unanswered?

I appreciate you allowing me to help you out and protect your family. You take care, (client name).