Outbound final expense. You're the underwriter, not the salesman — credentials early, the why in their own words, and never stray far from it. Get the social and the appointment shows.

Opening & Credentials

You're getting back to them, not cold-calling them. Assume the request.

01 Opening

Hey (client name), this is (your name) just getting back to you — can you hear me alright? (wait for response)

Perfect. So I was just reaching out about the information you requested regarding the state-regulated final expense programs. You remember going through that, right?

If no: Haha, I don't remember what I had for breakfast most days. Seems like you were just trying to protect your family if, God forbid, something happened to you — right?

Okay — my job is super simple. I'm the medical underwriter assigned to go over this with you, and it just takes a couple of minutes.

02 Credentials

If you could do me a favor — grab a pen and a piece of paper. I can have you take down all of my credentials so you know exactly who you're speaking to. Let me know when you're ready.

Give your first name, last name (spell it out), and your National Producer Number. With that number you can look me up on the Department of Insurance website and you'll see I'm not just some hobo off the street. (laughing)

No pen or paper? Send your license and full name over text. If they're in the car, try to get them to pull over. If they're busy, push to get through the questions and get the social — once you have that, the appointment you book is far more likely to show.

Find the Why

Everything from here anchors back to what they say in this section.

03 Confirm the Request

Okay great — so (client name), it looks like you noted that (read notes) was most important to you. Is that correct? Okay, awesome. And did you currently have anything in place as far as life insurance or burial coverage?

Alternate opener: So (client name), what prompted you to fill out the request — was it that you have some coverage, not enough, or nothing at all?

The Two Branches

Both roads end in the same place: the beneficiary paying out of pocket.

A They have coverage

Great! I'm glad to hear you already have something in place to protect your family. So I'm assuming you realized you need a little bit more to make sure everything is taken care of for (beneficiary)?

Got it. Alright — and they just require me to note this down here. Of course, if we end up finding something better we can see if you're in the consolidation period, but for now... how much do you currently have in place? And how long ago did you get it? Were you looking for just an additional 5 to 10 thousand in coverage, or something much more to leave behind?

B They don't have coverage

Got it. Now, would your main concern be taking care of burial expenses — or were you more interested in the cash value side of life insurance?

Have you been looking at this for a while? Have you had someone that recently passed that maybe prompted you to look into this — or did you just realize we're not getting any younger? (laughing) Haha, gotcha. Makes sense.

LOCK THE WHY

So I'm assuming you just want to make sure that whenever you pass away, (beneficiary) does not have to come out of pocket for any reason — correct? Got it.

Credibility & Structure

Tell them who you work for — them, not the carrier.

04 Who You Are

So (client name), I want to tell you a little bit about me and what I do, just so I'm not some stranger here, haha. I'm a senior underwriter and broker licensed by the state of (state). What that means is I work for you, not for them. I work with all 108 of the top A-rated companies in the nation that offer this coverage.

Now (client name), what we'll do today is run through the suitability sheet, go through a few health questions and a couple of financial questions — and then based on that I'll save you the time and do all the shopping for you, to see who's going to approve us with the lowest rates. Does that make sense?

Perfect. Once we find the company, my job is to get you the minimum amount of coverage you need to take care of the basic final expense costs. Anything after that is completely up to you. Does all of that make sense? Great.

Financial Inventory

No script here. Be likeable, build rapport — but never stray far from the why.

05 Filling the Sheet

Start by confirming the age they put down. Ask about their family, what they like to do — keep it smooth and conversational, not interrogative.

After the beneficiary section, go back to the why: So pretty simple — you just want to make sure that when you pass, (beneficiary) doesn't have to come out of pocket for any reason?

06 Finding the Company

Cremation: $5,000 – $10,000

Burial: $10,000 – $25,000+

Scale to their income level. Keep the premium at or below 5% of their monthly income — 5% maximum.

Going Into the E-App

Keep talking while you quote. Silence is where the deal dies.

07 The Transition

Alright (client name), so from here the process is pretty simple. I just plug this information into my database and they pull back the top three companies that are willing to give you the approval. From there I simply show you the company with the benefits and the best rates for you, and hopefully get you that approval. Does that make sense? Okay, great.

You should already have the FEX quoter open and be plugging in their conditions and medications. Ask a few additional questions from there to save time — don't stay silent for too long. Build rapport in between and keep everything smooth.

The Six Benefits

"So I'll have you just grab that pen and paper for me..." Say the header first, then explain.

1 Immediate Coverage

As soon as you make your first premium, you're covered day one — no two-year wait period like most carriers.

2 Secured Premiums

Premiums never increase and coverage never decreases.

3 Tax-Free

The death benefit, living benefit, and cash value are one of the few things we don't have to pay Uncle Sam for.

4 Living Benefits

If you get a terminal illness and the doctor tells you that you have 12 to 24 months to live, you'll have access to 50% of the benefit — tax free — while you're still living.

5 Cash Value

Your policy will accumulate cash value over time.

6 Permanent Coverage

This coverage will never expire on you. It lasts the rest of your life, or until the policy is paid up.

Based on what you've told me, the system has built three packages of coverage, and you can decide which one makes the most sense — but keep in mind we can adjust as you please. The goal here is to find the right amount of coverage for the best premium... but at the end of the day, we still have to get it approved. Does that make sense?

The Quote

Bronze, silver, gold — with the beneficiary's name in every one.

BRONZE The $__k option

This will cover a basic funeral expense, as long as it's not on the fancy end, but it won't leave money behind for (beneficiary). That will be (coverage amount) for $__ a month.

SILVER The $__k option

This is the option most people lean towards. It covers the full cost and factors in inflation down the road, so (beneficiary) doesn't have to be burdened by any of the expenses whatsoever. That will be (coverage amount) for $__ a month.

GOLD The $__k option

This is going to guarantee to cover the full cost of the funeral and leave some money behind for (beneficiary). That will be (coverage amount) for $__ a month.

THE GOLDEN QUESTION

So given those three options — the gold, the silver, and the bronze. Keep in mind the gold covers the full cost and leaves money behind, the silver is what most people go with because it factors in inflation, and the bronze gives you the peace of mind of covering the funeral itself.

Which one would make the most sense for you?

Then stop talking. Whoever speaks first after this question loses.

Numbers Objections

Their why is already on the table — anchor every response back to it.

C "I need to think about it."

I completely understand. Did you want to think about whether you needed the coverage at all, or about which option you should go with?

If which one: Let's start with the bare minimum, make sure you can get the approval and your foot in the door, and that it's comfortable and affordable. Then we can always increase it in the future. Does that make sense? So to get started on the app... (proceed with script)

If at all: Well (first name), if you did this two weeks ago, got the coverage then, and had the peace of mind that when you go, your family had this immediate (coverage amount) — would you feel you'd be in a better position today? If yes: Well then let's make sure you get that peace of mind — for you and for your family. (continue with script)

D "The price is too high."

Okay, I understand. Well — do you want a cheaper price, or a cheaper cost? The price is what you pay today. The cost is what you pay in the long run if you get a cheap policy from a cheap company that may never pay out, or has little to no benefits on it.

So let's make sure you get the right option. We can start with the (lowest option) and always increase it from there, so that you at least have some coverage protecting you and your family. (continue script)

E "I need to talk to my wife about this."

Push back 1: I completely understand. She's the beneficiary of the plan, and she has to know what's going on — you can't keep this a secret, that's for sure. Do you need to talk to her about which one to go with, or about whether you should even do this? Because you said this was to protect her, correct?

Push back 2: (client name), do you mind if I make a recommendation? Now, we can both agree accidents can happen at any time, right? So if something happened to you driving home tomorrow — and you had put this protection in place for your wife on possibly her worst day — do you think she'd be mad at you? Of course not. So let's make sure we can even get you approved here.

Starting the Application

Pre-frame every step so nothing you ask for feels like a surprise.

08 The Pre-Frame

So we'll send in a request for coverage and hope to get the approval — and if they decline you, we'll go to the next lowest option. Keep in mind they don't approve everyone, but I will do my best to get you the coverage, okay?

I'll be confirming basic information and asking you some similar medical questions that I already know the answers to — I'm just required to ask you for the carrier record by law. Then we'll list the beneficiary and choose the effective date. Does that make sense?

F "I don't want to give my social."

I completely understand. Now, the main reason they ask for that piece of information is because it's the only way they can identify you for the Medical Information Bureau — and when you pass away, that's the only thing on your death certificate, so it's how your loved ones get paid out.

Deliver this with total confidence. If you waver, they'll sense it. Treat the objection like it's the most ordinary question in the world — because to you, it is.

09 Working the Application

Text a picture of the application here.

Perfect... now what they're going to do is just validate your identity and make sure you're not a robot or anything. Obviously you're not — we're on the phone right now!

1. Answer all medical questions as given.
2. List the beneficiary — and ask for referrals while you're there.
3. Get the beneficiary's phone number.

Lining Up Banking

Never leave without a payment method. There is always another door.

10 Draft Date

If drafting immediately: The first premium typically drafts in 24 to 48 hours. Is that going to be fine? And is the (day) of every month going to work for you moving forward — or would you want it, like most people, on your SSI billing date?

If they push the date back: No problem — it actually looks like you qualify for Social Security billing, so it can be drafted in accordance with that date. Whether it's the 1st, the 3rd of the month, or the 3rd or 4th Wednesday — which one is when you receive your SSI?

Always push for recurring on the SSI billing date. It's the single biggest driver of persistency.

11 Banking Questions

1. Is your name as it appears with your financial institution?
2. It looks like we're partnered with (bank name) in our state system. Nine times out of ten the routing number that automates is correct — do you have a checkbook to confirm it? It should start with xxxx...
3. And your account number? — confirm it twice.

Banking Objections

Look up the carrier's routing number for their bank and state ahead of time so you can read it first.

G "I don't give banking over the phone."

Push back 1: Okay, I understand — I don't like giving banking over the phone either, unless it's to a licensed and verified person and not some hobo off the street, right? That's exactly why I shared my license, my full name, and my address with you for your safety.

Push back 2: Okay (client name), well of course this is life insurance we're applying for and putting in place for your family — they do need a valid account linked so that this policy stays in place and doesn't lapse. So go ahead with your account number.

H "I don't have a checkbook."

Do you get your statements by mail or by email — or do you do online banking? Okay, go ahead and pull it up from there.

If still nothing: No worries — we can just add the card on file for now and update it later. Go ahead with the card you want to put on file.

Ask Visa or Mastercard, write down the card number, expiration month/year, and the 3-digit CVV. Make them repeat it twice. Then pivot to AIG SIWL first, Prosperity if needed.

After the Close

Recap, personalize, and protect the policy from the next guy who calls.

12 The Recap

So (client name), everything is fully submitted and approved at this point. A couple of things to recap: the coverage we applied for was $____, and that's $____ on a monthly basis. (Have them save your contact and write down the policy number.)

Also — this number we're talking on is my direct line. It's the same number my mom calls me on. Anything you ever need in regards to this coverage, I'm always the first person you can reach out to. I'm just a phone call or a text away, okay?

13 Chargeback Prevention

Lastly — and this is important — we always contact the Department of Insurance in your state and let them know we've completed the request and submitted an application. The reason we do that is because it should remove you from any lists of solicitations about this coverage.

No one should ever contact you about this coverage other than myself or the carrier asking for personal information, okay? With the internet these days you'll still probably get some calls — but if anyone other than me calls, hang up immediately.

So if they say they're the manager, or it's been flagged, or you qualify for a cheaper rate — it's just a line of crap from some telemarketer trying to pull a fast one on you. We know this coverage is important to you, and I don't want to see some random person mess up the coverage for your family. Alright? Great.

CLOSING LINE

Perfect. Now look out for that policy in the mail — typically it takes 10 to 12 business days. I'll also be sending you another text message with my name and business card so you can save my number. Are there any questions or concerns I may have left unanswered?

I appreciate you allowing me to help you out and protect your family. You take care, (client name).
